WOMEN’S GLOBAL HEALTH AND HUMAN RIGHTS

COURSE DESCRIPTION

The slogan, “Healthy Women, Healthy World” embodies the fact that as caretakers of family health, women play a unique role in maintaining the well being of their families and communities. A woman’s access to quality basic health care, family planning and obstetric services can be improved through commitment to basic human rights. This course will take a human rights approach to provide an overview of health issues within the context of a woman’s life cycle – childhood, adolescence, reproductive years, and aging. We will pay special consideration to the socio-cultural and economic factors that play a role in the woman’s access to quality basic health care. Particularly important will be to understand women's capacities to have good health and manage their lives in the face of societal and cultural pressures and obstacles. Attention will be given to critical issues of women's health such as the demeaning of women, poverty, unequal access to education, food, and health care, and gender based violence. Such issues as maternal mortality, sexually transmitted disease, violence, harmful traditional practices, and sex trafficking will be discussed.

Course materials will draw from a wide variety of sources, including information about women's organizations inside and outside the US. After the second week, each consecutive week will be devoted to a particular phase of a woman's life and/or a health issue related to that phase. At the end of the semester, students will conduct a Women’s Conference focused on a particular country on the topic of Women’s Health and Human Rights. Beginning in early October, students will meet in small groups to discuss pertinent topics from that week and to prepare for a Women’s Health Conference. Assignments will be designed to teach students how to think critically on gender, health, and human rights in a contemporary global context.

OBJECTIVES OF THE COURSE

1. To understand women’s health as a basic human right.
2. To explore the following questions:
   How does gender affect health and health care?
   How do gender stereotypes influence our recognition and management of women’s health issues?
3. To introduce critical health issues affecting women globally in terms of cultural, social, and economic contexts.
4. To familiarize students with some of the strategies and programs that NGOs are using to address women's health issues.
5. To learn how to advocate effectively for global women’s health and human rights.
6. To communicate a sense of personal empowerment and connection with women globally.

Required Readings:

All books for the course are available for purchase at A Room of One's Own Feminist Bookstore, 307 W. Johnson St. Books will also be on reserve at H.C. White (College Library) and at the Steenbock Library.

Handouts and Additional Materials: Throughout the semester, we will use Learn@UW to post important information (handouts, required readings, additional readings to supplement the required materials, links to useful research and writing resources, etc.). The information posted online will NOT be distributed in class. It is your responsibility to check the site for updates.

COURSE REQUIREMENTS AND GRADING POLICY
Discussion and participation. Class sessions will involve discussions, student presentations, in-class exercises, lectures (including guest lecturers), and films. Active participation in class discussion is required and essential for the success of the class. For the required readings, students will prepare discussion questions in advance and will have to use them in their group as a guide for facilitating class discussions. Students are expected to regularly attend class and complete all assigned readings in advance of lecture in order to facilitate discussion. More than three absences will adversely affect the final grade.

Two Midterm exams: in-class exams. More specific guidelines will be provided in lecture.
Final paper: For the final paper each student will complete a two-part paper. The first part will be a 10-15-page (20-25 for grad students) analysis on a women’s health issue. The topic could be either a domestic U.S. issue or an international issue that focuses on one country or region. The second part of the paper will be a 2-page memo to a policymaker of the relevant government(s) making recommendations for the improvement of women’s health.

Failure to attend lecture will affect grades as follows:

Late, Missed, or Incomplete Work: Except for reasons beyond your control such as serious illness or emergency, your grade will be reduced each day an assignment remains incomplete or not turned in. After a week, I will not accept late, incomplete, or missed work, and you will receive an "F" for that portion of your grade.

Incomplete grades will not be given EXCEPT in situations of serious illness or family emergency, which must be documented.

Accessibility: Please let us know if you require any alternative accommodations or if you have any accessibility concerns that may affect your performance in this course. The McBurney Resource Center (www.mcburney.wisc.edu), 1305 Linden Dr. 263-2741, TTY 263-6393, provides useful assistance and documentation for a range of needs and concerns.

Plagiarism and Academic Misconduct: Plagiarism means presenting the words or ideas of others without giving them credit. It is your responsibility to learn what constitutes plagiarism and the correct rules for citing sources. In general, if your paper implies that you are the author, the ideas and words must be your own.
If you use someone else’s exact words, they should be enclosed in quotation marks with the exact source listed. Please, refer to the Dean of Students’ web page for further information: www.wisc.edu/students/amsu.htm

Examples of Academic Misconduct include but are not limited to: cutting and pasting portions of a text from the web without quotation marks or proper citation; paraphrasing from the web without crediting the source; using another person’s ideas, words, or research and presenting it as your own by not properly crediting the originator; signing another person’s name to an attendance sheet. For more details refer again to the Dean of Students’ web page: www.wisc.edu/students/amsu.htm This Website also has useful information on what do to if you are charged with academic misconduct.
